

CHAPTER TWO

The cave boy

The boy had long hair and no trousers. He was very frightened.

'Who's HE?' asked Emma.

'Is he from your time, Tim?' asked a boy.

'No!' said Tim. 'He's from the Stone Age. He's a cave boy!'

'Sorry, young man,' said the teacher. 'We can take you home now.'

The cave boy did not understand. Now, he was not frightened ... he was ANGRY!

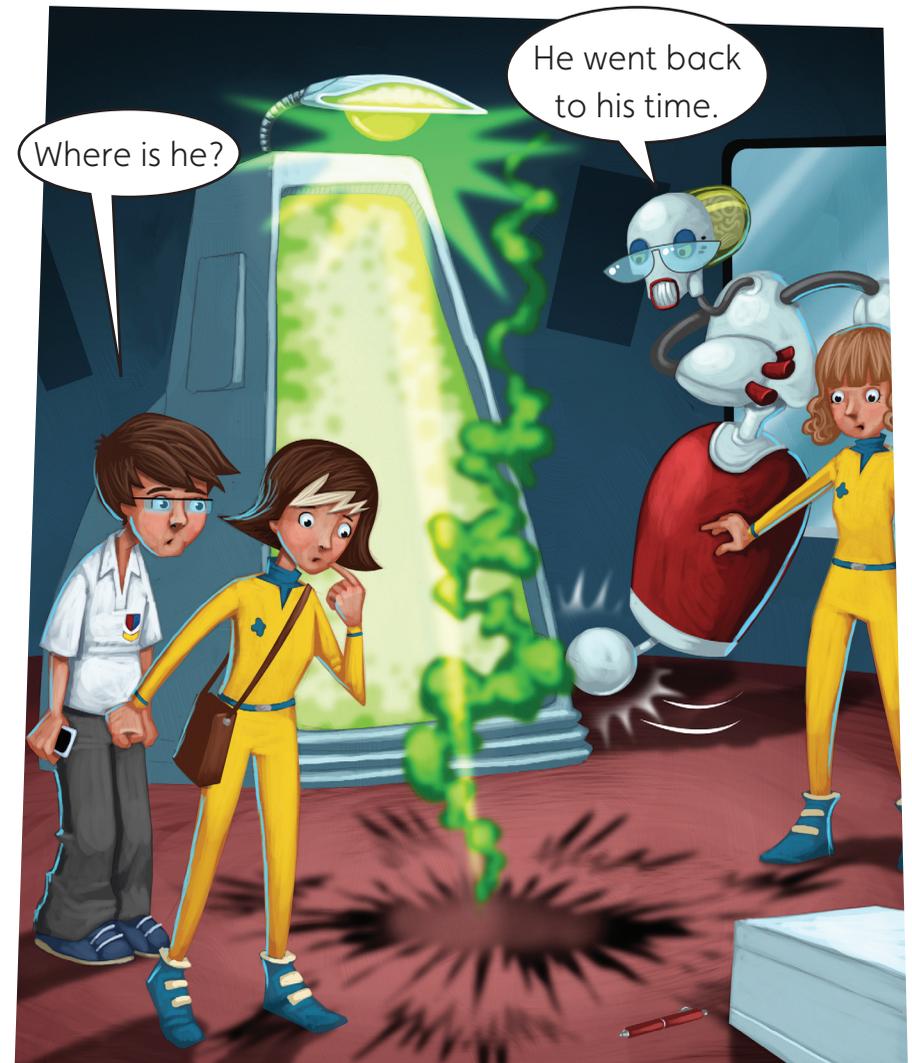

He started to run and jump around.

The cave boy was quick. He was very strong too.

'Help!' shouted the children.

The teacher kicked the time machine again – a big kick this time – and ...

'We are going to finish today's class now,' said the teacher quickly.

'Wait!' said Emma. 'I want to talk to Tim about something.'

But the teacher did not listen. She wanted Tim to go back to his time now. There was a flash of light from the time machine.

Tim opened his eyes but he did not see the museum. He saw trees.

'It's the time machine,' said someone next to him. 'There are always problems with it.'

It was Emma!

'I jumped into the light too,' she said.

'Why?' asked Tim. Emma did not answer.

'What's that behind us?' she said.
